"In his last attempt to secure a victory he received eleven wounds and fell. He was caught by his aid, Lieut. Col. Buysson, who rushed through the clashing bayonets, and spreading his own form over that of the prostrate hero, received the wounds intended for hise fallen Commander, exclaiming as he fell beside him: 'Save the Baron De Kalb! Save the Baron De Kalb!' On hearing his name the British officers interfered and rescued them both from the fury of the men."—White's Statistics of Georgia.
